LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

Dr. Bain arrived back from Grand Rapids Sunday.

Rafes of saw logs are arriving every few days for Moore & Macdonald's mill. George McKay left for Duck Lake yesterday. He intends returning about the end of the week.

The mail driver informs us that he passed John Wymers' billiard table this side of the Salt Plains.

Markley & Orr intend offering a number of choice building lots at their auction rooms on Saturday evening. Look out for bargains.

A combined strike of telegraph operators is now going on, in consequence of which general business is somewhat retarded, though not stopped.

It is rumored that the steamer Northcote is fast on a sand bar a few miles up the river waiting for a rise of water to enable her to reach this port.

Mr. Lookins, who has just returned from Troy, reports the crops in that locality as looking very badly. He was pleased to note the difference in crops in this locality.

At present the water in the river is very low, but should the warm weather continue, we can expect to see a few days to have the usual rise which generally takes place about this time of year.

J. C. McKenzie, of the Prince Albert hotel, and shoe store, arrived back here Tuesday morning from the east, where he had been to meet his wife and family, who have returned with him.

Mackay's saw mill commenced running last week and is turning out a fair amount of lumber daily, for which there is a good demand. There is at present quite a boom in house building in this locality.

We are glad to know that Mr. Thomas Baker is rapidly recovering from the severe attack of erysipelas from which he has been suffering for the past week. We hope to see him around again in a few days.

A dupe is a male who grasps the arm of a young boy when he walks with her. A man who is not a dupe can be distinguished by the fact that he grasps the young lady around the waist if it becomes long and he thinks no one is looking.

The Goods' Band, Ottawa, held a meeting this week to consider whether or not they will accept a body as a concert party on their tour on the 15th day, permission being refused them crossing the lines to assist in celebrating the day.

A Presbyterian mission station has been organized in Mclellan's settlement. There are thirteen families on the mission now. The contract for the complete construction of the church building has been let to Messrs. McKenney & McKenney, who intend to prosecute the work vigorously.

In all of the Dominion Geological Survey, an officer is to be sent to the north of the Hudson's Bay route, to see if he can find a navigable route.

It is an opinion that navigation is possible for at least four or five months every year. He also states that there are no engineering difficulties in the way of building a road. In fact it would be much easier to build a road through that country than in many countries where roads have been built.

Messrs. Wardrop and McLeod arrived back on town Monday from Kinitow, where they had been engaged in laying out town lots for some time past. They inform us that some twenty-seven buildings are in course of erection in that locality. Very good for the ambitious little town.

Don't forget the great sale of dry goods, clothing and general goods at the City Auction Mart, commencing on Saturday evening next, and continuing every Wednesday afternoon and Saturday evening until the whole stock is closed out—2 o'clock p.m. and 8 p.m. Mackley & Orr, auctioneers.

Gen. Tom Thambi has gone over to the short majority. He died at his residence in Middlebury, Mass., on the 13th inst. of apoplexy. He was born at Brookport, Conn., on January 4th, 1828. At the age of 14 he entered the service of P. T. Barnum, and has been ever since before the public. He leaves a widow, who has been on the stage with him since 1863.

Owing to the low stage of water in the river the Marquis was unable to complete his trip to this town, and was obliged to discharge her cargo at the Forks of the River. This is unfortunate for those having heavy freight on board, amongst which are several self-hinders for Harris, Son & Co. The local agent will require to make a big push to get the outfit here in time for the harvest.

We had the pleasure of looking over the farm of Mr. John McNevis, at the Ridge, the beginning of this week, which is undoubtedly one of the best farms in this district. John's crops are looking splendidly. He is about through with his haying, and expects to commence cutting his barley and other harvesting work next week. The crops all through that section of country are looking well.

Messrs. T. C. Welsh and G. W. Scott, traders, arrived here on Monday with an outfit consisting of three ox teams, wagons and a supply of general goods. On the 23rd July they had a close call for a serious accident. As Mr. Scott was putting a gun into the wagon it was accidentally discharged, setting fire to and exploding some fifteen pounds of powder. Fortunately no damage was done, further than the blowing out of the tail end of the wagon.

An adjourned meeting will be held in the school house on Tuesday, August 10th, at eight o'clock, for the purpose of electing a school board for the coming year. The school attendance at the previous meeting hindered any action. Surely it is reasonable to expect that the parents at least of the children who attend the school should manifest interest enough to turn out to transact business necessary to carry it on. A public school system is one which supplies the need of the future, and is one of the greatest necessities of the Saskatchewan Territory, and one of the strongest arguments in favor of incorporation.

THE BISHOP OF SASKATCHEWAN

The following paragraph was taken from the Winnipeg Star, and is well worth republishing.

The John McLeone is another apostate, not in the same sense as the last, but in the same sense, though exterior but of childlike simplicity and the most loving disposition, he has undergone perils and been mixed up in adventures which are not to be told to those of St. Paul. His powers of persuasion, as he speaks the living Gospel, are well known to all, and as he speaks the name of Jesus and of the countless number of whites whom the vast streams of immigration is yearly pouring into his diocese, he has rugged sympathy for the poor, the sick and the suffering. So thoroughly is this understood, that a few years ago when the late Archbishop of Canterbury was sailing on him to address a large missionary meeting in Ketter Hall, London, he first failed to remember, or being unable to pronounce the name of his brother bishop's remote diocese, introduced him at last, after three attempts at saying the right thing, as the "Bishop of Cathlamet," with the added remark that the name simply expressed the poverty of his English beggins. By this time John McLeone had been the last known English.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of The Times.

SIR, In your last week's issue you published an article on "Incorporation," and in it you expressed not only the sentiments of all resident property holders, but also of all who are interested in our future and wish us well. While there may be some who have never enjoyed the advantages of local self government and therefore hesitate, I cannot imagine that there would be any who, after they really understood the matter, would oppose it or throw any obstacles in the way of its early accomplishment.

For the information of those who are not acquainted with the working of municipal forms of government, I will with your permission endeavor to discuss it in as fair a manner as possible.

We desire incorporation because it will place the destinies of this town in the hands of those to whom by right it belongs.

It is not those who own large tracts of land in this vicinity who have made Prince Albert or who are doing anything at present to further its interests, they are living in the hope of realizing large sums in consequence of other peoples toil and enterprise and ought to be left to go and seek their share, willing to pay their share to all proper payments. I would like to give prominence to the fact that it is buildings and not land that makes a town and builders and not land owners who should control it.

Without the buildings that have been erected in this vicinity Prince Albert would be no better than any other area of good farming land in the North West Territories. Another object of incorporation is to give security to those who have already built and to encourage others to follow their example, and to make this a desirable point for investment.

To do this town must be able to satisfy them that the town of Prince Albert is permanently located; that the future growth will be within limits already defined; that safety to life and property will be guaranteed; that there shall be unity of purpose among the people and that purpose to make this place the grain market and distributing point for the surrounding country. Two objects require attention, schools and protection against fire; the absolute necessity of both is apparent to all and the cost of making both efficient would be trifling. The above, with a small annual expenditure on improving the roads within the corporate limits, is almost all that would be necessary to give a certain permanency to this town, which it does not at present possess.

Taxation, no matter how light it may be, is a terrible bugbear to some. A man will oppose incorporation on account of the taxes he would have to pay and yet would expend cheerfully thirty or forty dollars on a sidewalk in front of his house, or on making the fact that he might or ten dollars paid in taxes to have a better better sidewalk and a better road in front of his house, a good tree school for his children, a whole lot of things to protect him from fire and a policeman to guard his property while he sleeps in safety.

No fact has shown that the advantage is on the side of incorporation, but it is when we look at it from another standpoint that the advantage is more apparent. We require capital, but capital is not being invested abundantly as it once was, circumstances have changed and we must change with them or be left behind. We have to show and satisfy capitalists that Prince Albert is a permanently established town, that its inhabitants are united and progressive, and working energetically on good sound business principles and that consequently its future is assured.

Archibald Mackay arrived back here from Winnipeg on Monday. He was accompanied by Mr. Wright.

The Hamilton News, which took place at Oshkosh on the 19th inst. was a representation of the procession which took place previous to the one in which the Oshkosh had been engaged, resulting in a victory for Hamilton. It was a most successful one, and the result for four days has been a most successful one.

THE PRINCE ALBERT TIMES

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1883

LOUIS REIL.

Louis Reil of insurrectionary fame has returned to Manitoba and will probably remain in Canada. His term of banishment expired two years ago. In an interview with a New reporter he stated that the insurrection in 1870 was perfectly justifiable. This statement was explained as including all the acts of the insurgents, even the shooting of Scott is still defended, but he refuses to tell where the body was buried. He admits having received what he calls "dirty" money to the extent of one thousand dollars from Archbishop Tache.

THE MOST UNKINDEST CUT OF ALL.

Some time ago the entire press of the North West was unit in denouncing Lieut. Governor Dewdney, but as the North West Council is to be called together shortly the attacks ceased. But the Toronto Mail, which seems to think its mission on earth is to play the pater familias to our Lieut. Governor, unwilling that he should be allowed to escape, endeavors to defend him and so rouses once more the press of Manitoba and the North West. Of Mr. Dewdney, personally we know little. He was appointed to his present position by the Government, who knew or should have known that he was not possessed of any of the qualities necessary to make him a successful ruler, for reasons which they have never seen fit to reveal. Even this would have been quickly passed over if he had seen fit to spend a considerable part of his time amongst the people over whom he held sway. But when the people learned that in addition to his being an absentee, he was using his official position to benefit his private ends and that the Council would not be called together again for at least another year on the paltry grounds that there was nothing for them to do if called together, without taking into consideration the fact that this would more properly have been a subject for the Council itself to consider. Mr. Dewdney has not done so much for the North West as the North West has done for him. No efforts of servile party papers can place the matter in a better light than that in which it has already been placed. Nearly all the papers of the Territories are Conservatives in tone but they will not stoop to do the bidding of any leader or leaders and cannot conscientiously feel that Mr. Dewdney has been true to the trust reposed in him. Regarding the article in the Mail, however, he may well exclaim "Save me from my friends," for it is certainly the "most unkindest cut of all."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is rumored that Sir A. T. Galt will shortly succeed Mr. Dewdney as Lieutenant Governor of the North West.

The recent Jean Baptiste celebrations, and the strong French national speeches made by the orators on that occasion, have called attention anew to the fact that the French population of Canada is characterized by a startling amount of solidarity which bodes no good for the future solidarity of the Dominion. The chain of provinces is completely cut in two by the French element, which obstinately refuses to intermingle with the English speaking race, and is driving it out. The problem presented in this fact is well worthy of the study of statesmen.

It is proposed in 1884 to mark Sir John's forty years in public life by a public testimonial of some kind. If any man ever deserved such a favor from a party, Sir John does. He is the head, middle and tail of it and but for his acute control it would many times oftener have become disorganized.

There is a vacant seat in the Senate for the Kingston district. The name of Dr. Sullivan, of that city, has several times been mentioned in connection with it. The doctor is a man of intelligence and ability, and has strong claims upon the party. An appointment to the Senate, like kissing, of course goes by favor, so that a Conservative is sure to get it. Dr. Sullivan would be a great deal more useful in the House of Commons, but the Senate would be none the worse of an injection of brains and ability.

Every assistance is being rendered to the unfortunate people whose houses were carried away by the floods in London. It is not often that Canada has to record an accident from such a cause, nor yet one of the kind which turns out to be so serious. Spring floods, caused by the melting of the snow after a long winter, are not uncommon, but a flood from a persistent fall of rain is something unusual. More lives are lost and more damage is done through fire and water than all other causes put together.

The trade dollar is soundly abused in the States, because, instead of being a dollar, it is only eighty-five cent. It has fallen into great disrepute, notwithstanding that while it contains 420 grains of silver, the legitimate standard dollar only contains 412½. It is being claimed as a strong argument for the fiat money principle that the Government, by making the standard coin a legal tender, is able to legislate value into it to the extent of fifteen or twenty cents, while the trade dollar, which passes on its intrinsic value, is at a discount. Efforts are being made to induce the Government to redeem the trade dollar, but they are not likely to succeed. The most that the Government is apt to do is to call the trade dollar in at its current value for mint purposes. The trade dollar owes its existence to the Asiatic trade, and was not designed for circulating in the States, but the American eagle, like the less pretentious barnyard fowl, has come home to roost.

Mr. Joaquin Miller, the distinguished American writer and poet, is at Quebec. The body of young Elmday, who was drowned near Stene Mills, Belleville, has been recovered.

STEWART & WOOTTON

"IT CAN NEVER BE."

Ethlyn McNulty's voice was husky with pain as she spoke these words, and in the luminous depths of the soft brown eyes there was a wistful pleading, if you knew how tight your shoes were, you would go on a street car look that Harold Eversink, man of the world though he was, had never seen there before.

I was a soft, sensuous Chicago June evening, and as Harold adjusted his ear-muffs and took Ethlyn's hand in his he felt that without the love of this woman his life would be blank and dreary, and desolate as a St. Louis paper. The very thought was maddening, and as it burned into his soul with cruel force he looked out sadly over his no-chance to get out unless you jump over the collar, and Ethlyn saw that the lip which held his don't tell papa mustache was quivering with pain.

"You know I love you, Harold," she said, "I love you with a deathless passion. I know that your love would shield and protect me forever and ever, and that in that love I should find the peace and contentment that every girl standing on the threshold of womanhood so longs for—that indefinable, mysterious, I don't know whether it is a new hat or car-muffs—that I want finding that throws about the cold flat facts of life the glimmer of a mystic dreamland that we feel, but can not see. But such happiness may not be. I love you too well, Harold, to ever knowingly cause you one instant of pain, and therefore I say to you standing here with the stars that deck the heavens looking down upon me, with the voice of nature saying in every budding flower and trembling leaf and horse-liniment alongside that summer has come again—I say it solemnly, tearfully and for the last time, that I cannot be your wife," and weeping in a mad, passionate way, as if all the chewing-gum in the world was gone, she threw herself in a reckless, blind stagger fashion on the grass at his feet and moaned pitifully.

In an instant Harold had jumped over her feet and was kneeling beside her. "Why can you not marry me?" he asked. "What is the obstacle of which you speak so mysteriously."

"Do not ask me," she said, "Do not seek to make yourself miserable, perhaps for life."

"But I demand an answer," he says. Raising herself slowly, and sitting there on one foot, Ethlyn McNulty looks up at him. The moonlight stealing through the branches of the linden trees above them is not white but the face of the girl upon which it falls so gently, and in her eyes there is a look of haunting fear that is pitiful in its soft intensity.

"You slave yourself," she says, looking at him steadily.

"Yes," he answers. "But certainly this can have nothing to do."

"Wait," says the girl. "It would be a mere trial to you were any one else to use your name."

"It would," is the reply.

"It is as I thought," continues Ethlyn. "No," speaking gently to herself, "I could not resist the temptation no woman could."

"What do you mean?" he asks. "I demand an answer."

"I mean," she replies, in a cold mechanical way, "that I have a hereditary cough." Chicago Tribune.
